

FCC, I think three classes of license is just fine. I also think that to retain the code for general and extra, will make them a better operator. I do not believe the entry license should be able to operate on 160 and 15 meters. These two bands are very crowded and 160 is an especially difficult band to make contact on due to the static etc. Let the new licenses operate on VHF, where we need participation, and let them use 10 meters to get experience on an HF band.
